DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 2-9 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 2, line 6, it appears the first "extension portion" should be ---gripping portion--- since the extension portion is coupled to the gripping portion and not to itself. Likewise, in claim 9, line 18, the first "extension portion" should be ---gripping portion--- since the extension portion is coupled to the gripping portion and not to itself. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless —

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Art Unit: 1744

Claims 1, 6, 7 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Salvy (US patent 2,795,807).

The patent to Salvy discloses the invention as is claimed. Salvy discloses an apparatus comprising a handle member (2), a head member (1) coupled to the handle and having a pair of channels (3,4) therein for receiving mounting members (7,8) of a scrubbing member (fig.2). The scrubbing member has a main portion (5) with bristles (6) thereon and is selectively mounted to the head. The scrubbing member is adapted to scrub or contact any surface so desired. Each mounting member has a base portion and a securing portion (see fig.2). Such are not numbered, but clearly shown. Likewise, each of the channels in the head has a vertical portion and angled portion.

With respect to claim 1, terming the apparatus a "body scrubbing apparatus" does not distinguish from Salvy as such can be used in any manner so desired. Such at most relates to the intended use of the device and does not define any particular structure, at least none not disclosed by Salvy.

Claims 1, 2, 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nishiyama et al (US patent 4,392,269).

The patent to Nishiyama discloses the invention as is claimed. Nishiyama discloses an apparatus comprising a handle member (6) with a gripping portion (6a) at one end and an extension portion at the other, the extension portion extends (fig.2) into a head member (3). Note figure 2 wherein it can be seen that some adjustability in the length of the extension member into the head member is allowable. A scrubbing member (23) is selectively mounted to the head member. The scrubbing member is adapted to scrub or contact any surface so desired. A locking member (7) is operationally coupled to the head and around the extension portion for inhibiting movement of the extension portion with respect to the head member when actuated by a user. The locking member is threadably (4,8) coupled with the head member such that rotation of the locking member actuates the locking member.

With respect to claim 1, terming the apparatus a "body scrubbing apparatus" does not distinguish from Nishiyama as such can be used in any manner so desired. Such at most relates to the intended use of the device and does not define any particular structure, at least none not disclosed by Nishiyama.

Claims 1, 2, 3, 4 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tubman (US patent 6,845,539).

The patent to Tubman discloses the invention as is claimed. Tubman discloses an apparatus (fig. 9,10) comprising a handle member (514) with a gripping portion at one end and an extension portion at the other. The gripping portion comprises an arcuate portion and a straight portion (see fig. 9). The extension portion extends into a head member (574) and is lockable therein by a locking member (576). Note figure 9 wherein it can be seen that adjustability in the length of the extension member into the head member is allowed and controlled by the locking member. A scrubbing member (12) is selectively mounted to the head member. The scrubbing member is adapted to scrub or contact any surface so desired.

With respect to claim 1, terming the apparatus a "body scrubbing apparatus" does not distinguish from Tubman as such can be used in any manner so desired. Such at most relates to the intended use of the device and does not define any particular structure, at least none not disclosed by Tubman.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 9 would be allowable if amended to overcome the minor objection thereto.
